Nufarm announces regional management changes

Nufarm Limited announced that it has changed its regional management structures in North America and in Australia / New Zealand. These changes bring Nufarm closer to consistent regional management models across all global operations.

Darryl Matthews, General Manager Nufarm North America will be leaving Nufarm. Darryl has made a significant contribution to Nufarm over the past 15 years. Brendan Deck has been asked to move into the role of Regional General Manager Nufarm North America, subject to the relevant visa approvals. Brendan is an experienced senior manager who has worked in the agribusiness sector for many years. He has held the position of General Manager Crop Care Australia for three years and in that time has developed an extremely customer focused business.

Lachie McKinnon is appointed to the position of Regional General Manager, Australia and New Zealand and will take on additional responsibility for the Crop Care and Croplands business units, together with Nufarm Australia and Nufarm NZ.

Peter O'Keeffe and Owen Williams have been appointed to commercial leadership positions of Nufarm Australia and Crop Care respectively.

Peter O'Keeffe (Nufarm Australia); Brett Sutherland (Nufarm New Zealand); Owen Williams (Crop Care); and Sean Mulvaney (Croplands) will report directly to Mr. McKinnon.

Nufarm also announced that the Southern Africa country business managed by Andrew Dunlop, will also move under the Australia and New Zealand regional leadership.
